Boss lifted to Solomons

BUNBURY Senior High School teacher Frank Mazella divides his time as an educator with his role as an army reservist in the Solomon Islands and school principal Craig Pettit was given the opportunity to see him in action.

Sergeant Mazella recently completed a four month deployment to the Solomon Islands where he worked as part of the civil-military liaison team.

Mr Pettit was flown to the islands in March as a part of Exercise Boss Lift which is a program designed to allow employers to experience the essential roles played by their employees.

Sgt Mazella said it was good to have Mr Pettit there to see what he does in his role in the office and out in the field.

"I didn't really have an idea of the work Frank was doing over here," said Mr Pettit.

"I know how he works in the school back home and I respect and admire his work in this regard.

Certainly this respect increases when you see him working here, interacting with the community and his capacity to learn a new language in a short time."

One of the highlights of Exercise Boss Lift for Mr Pettit was the range activity where he fired a number of weapons in use by the Australian Army.
