

Line of fire – all in a day's work

The Zone

FEW employees would be brave enough to ask their boss to keep them on the books while they took six months off.

But Andrew Clowes, 44, has a good excuse — and a good boss.

When he is not talking property as an associate director at Jones Lang LaSalle, the Brisbane father-of-three is fighting terrorism as an intelligence analyst for the Royal Australian Naval Reserve.

He has just returned from his latest and longest assignment, a six-month posting in war-torn Iraq

~~~~~
He recently hosted Deputy Premier Anna Bligh and about 40 employers and reservists during a Brisbane River cruise on the warship Brunei in a bid to publicise the benefits.

“He had a duty to perform for Australia and so I thought it was my duty as an employer to support him,” his employer, Queensland managing director of Jones Lang LaSalle, Stephen Conry, said.

MASTERPLANNING and landscape architecture firm EDAW Australia has been shortlisted from a field of 170 businesses worldwide to design Singapore's 94ha waterfront project Gardens by the Bay.

They have until July to submit plans for three public gardens.

BOVIS Lend Lease has started work on the $25 million Creative Learning Centre at the Brisbane Girls Grammar School. Designed by m3architecture, the 8900sq m building includes many sustainable features.

THEY'RE such an active bunch at PRDnationwide that the group holds quarterly awards to recognise the hard work the team have contributed so far this year. Platinum award winners include: Tim Douglas, Kim Taylor, Andrew Degn, Meg Robertson, Andre Hadenfeldt and Marilyn Thurtell.

NAVY Reserves intelligence analyst, Commander Andrew Clowes.

Picture: Megan Cullen